HI TOMLINSON WAS TICKLED -Abs Hopkins of Brier Ridge, Pa., returned from Michigan a few days ago with a pair of badgers. No one on the ridge had ever seen a badger, so last Saturday Abs invited the neighboring woodemen to call around and take a look at his pets. Seven brawny men Will positively BREAK UP Chils and Fever IN- met at Abe's place in the afternoon, and met at Abe's place in the afternoon, and each one had a dog at his heels. After they had all told what they thought about the new animals, Abe went to dipping a hole in his chip yard. In the hole he set an empty bail keg at a forty-five degree slant. The top end was open, and Abe put one of the badgers in the keg and offered to bet $3 to $3 to $4 to $4 enatch the badger bald headed at the first tunge. Abe covered the money, and Hi set Snowball on. The buildog sprang into the keg up to his middle, there was a lightning speed tussle for a minute, and the dog backed out with his own blood all over his face Hi urged him on again, and the badger met bim balf way, clawed him in the face and eyes, and made him turn tall, much to Hi'e disappointment. Hi couldn't get Snowball to tackle the badger any more, although he jerked him up to the keg and ordered him to fetch the little animal out, and he owned to have been a significant. up beaten. The dog looked as if he had been monkeying with a buzz saw, and Hi allowed that the badger was quite a fighter.

Dave Arnold's terrier Prince was the next to dash into the keg. He got a sore head in short order, yelled enough in less than thirty seconds, and slunk away to grieve over his experience. Than Hank Bush put up $1 and let his hound Roarer have a shake at the badger. Old Roarer didn't se his shoulders in the keg before the badger tore a slit in his nose, and he gave up licked without another effort. The for was kept up until all the dogs in the party were rub bing their bloody noses and the badger was still in the heg. Abe was feeling good, for he had raked in $7 from his visitors, but Hi Tomlinson was not satisfied. He offered to bet Abe $5 even that inside of an hour he could bring a dog that would clean out the badger, and Abe took him up.

When Hi returned he had Bill Mumford'. deg Spot, half bu ldog and balf coach deg. Mumford bought Spot in Texes, and he came along to see the sport. He sail that Spo-had killed scores of coons and woodchucks and that he had never been worsted in s fight. Toen he set the dog on, and Sput dived into the ked like a shot, caught the badger ay the neck, yanked it out, and went to shaking it as if it was a rat. The badger of the best manufacturers in tore his hide in several places, but he didn't this country, flingh a partials and he have flinch a particle, and he kept trying to get the badger by the back. The blood flew from each, and they both rolled over and over on the chips. At last Spot got the hold he had been working for, and within a mirute he broke badger's back, and shook it till it was dead.
